Practical Applications Workshop

This master class workshop focuses on the practical applications of sacred geometry to design, architecture and landscape.

Part one is a three day theoretical workshop that focuses on the theory of sacred geometry with in-depth guidance and tips on the practical applications for building sacred geometry dwellings. You are housed in a remarkable sacred geometry dwelling designed by Michael Rice, in an easy to get to location 1.5hrs from Dublin by bus.

Part two begins with a tour of completed dwellings, followed by our coach journey to West Cork, one of the most beautiful areas of Ireland. Here we will conduct an intensive practical hands-on experience where you will be directly involved in building a structure based on sacred geometry, under the tutelage and expert guidance of a master geometer/builder. Particular attention and emphasis is being paid to show how to optimize building with curves and other natural forms.

This workshop is ideal for anyone considering building their own sacred space, also for architects, designers, framers, builders, developers, feng shui practitioners, and interested folk who want to discover more about creating dwellings that breath and radiate energy.

"It was an incredible experience to be involved in the design and the actual building of a sacred geometry based structure. I saw from start to finish how it should be done!"
